Re: Revenue Operations Manager

Dear Hiring Team,

I'm writing to apply for the Revenue Operations Manager role. What drew me in is that the position sits exactly where I do my best work — at the seam between marketing, sales, and customer success, where a well-architected CRM turns scattered activity into predictable pipeline. For 15+ years I've built that connective tissue across MarTech, SaaS, and agency environments.

A few things I'd bring on day one: I architect HubSpot and Salesforce systems end to end — segmentation, lifecycle stages, lead routing, and the data-hygiene discipline that keeps reporting trustworthy. I build the dashboards leadership actually uses, tracking funnel progression, campaign ROI, and pipeline velocity. And at Wix I helped drive a 30% increase in traffic and a 25% lift in conversion across the e-commerce segment by aligning operations to the metrics that mattered. Increasingly, I pair that systems work with AI-driven automation for enrichment, scoring, and outreach.

I'd welcome the chance to talk through how I can help make your revenue engine more predictable. Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

Joshua Rotenberg
