Morning Consult
Re: Senior Marketing Operations Specialist

Dear Hiring Team,

I'm applying for the Senior Marketing Operations Specialist role. Your line about building the system rather than inheriting it describes how I've worked for the last several years. At Solenzo I design CRM and automation systems from a blank account: lifecycle stages, lead scoring and MQL criteria, routing, nurture logic, field standards, and the syncs that carry it all into the CRM.

The measurement side is hands-on too. I build GTM triggers and GA4 conversion events, enforce UTM conventions, and set up domain authentication and consent so the data is clean before it reaches a dashboard. I've worked in Salesforce at three companies, and I helped leadership at Accelo build their lead qualification system while carrying a quota, so I know what sales needs from an MQL handoff. I also use Claude and ChatGPT every day, including LLM API calls inside production workflows.

My HubSpot depth is in client builds rather than an in-house enterprise instance, and Clay and LeanData would be new tools for me. The architecture thinking behind them is what I do every day. I'd welcome a conversation.

Sincerely,

Joshua Rotenberg
